A Tree Cannot Make A Forest...

The foundation of our design process is collaboration.

Our ability to ask critical questions, listen carefully and respond thoughtfully is the key to a successful project.

At DRA, we love what we do. We're passionate about planning and design for educational environments because of the positive impact well planned spaces can have on users, whether a student playing a math game, an educator developing an engaging lesson plan or parents watching their daughter on stage for the first time. We strive to create spaces that encourage discovery and interaction, strengthen community and create memories.

“One of the most significant strengths of the team was their commitment and willingness to “go the extra mile” to garner support for the project. Their responsiveness to the Committee and members of the public and their straightforward approach helped build necessary support for the Plan and resulted in the passage of a district-wide referendum to renovate our three schools.”
